Item 8.01. Other Events

EnerSys Delaware Inc. (“EDI”), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company, entered into a Supply and Distribution Agreement with Alteryg Systems (“Alteryg”) in January 2008, which was amended in December 2009, pursuant to which EDI was, among other things, granted the exclusive right to distribute and sell certain fuel cell products manufactured by Alteryg for various applications throughout the United States. Commencing in 2011, various disputes arose and, because of the mandatory arbitration provision in the Supply and Distribution Agreement between EDI and Alteryg (the “SDA”), an arbitration action was filed by EDI in November 2012 seeking arbitration of claims relating to the SDA. In February 2013, EDI terminated the SDA. Following unsuccessful attempts to resolve their disputes by mediation in July 2013, the parties moved forward with arbitration in August 2013, where each party asserted various claims against the other.

On May 14, 2014, EnerSys issued a press release announcing that an award had been issued on May 13, 2014 in connection with this arbitration. A copy of the press release is attached hereto as Exhibit 99.1 to this Current Report on Form 8-K and is incorporated herein by reference.

EnerSys Announces Arbitration Ruling Related to Alteryg Supply and Distribution Agreement

READING, Pa., May 14, 2014 -- EnerSys (NYSE: ENS), the global leader in stored energy solutions for industrial applications, announced today it has received the decision of an arbitration panel in the EnerSys Delaware Inc. v. Alteryg Systems arbitration matter. This action was initiated by EnerSys Delaware Inc. ("EDI"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of EnerSys, in November 2012 to seek arbitration of claims relating to a Supply and Distribution Agreement (the "SDA") with Alteryg Systems ("Alteryg"), as required by the SDA. Following unsuccessful attempts to resolve their disputes by mediation in July 2013, the parties moved forward with arbitration in August 2013, where each party asserted various claims against the other.

After discovery, a hearing and post-hearing submissions by each party, on May 13, 2014, the arbitration panel issued an award in favor of Alteryg. As a result, the arbitration panel concluded that Alteryg should recover $58.2 million in net money damages from EDI.

John D. Craig, chairman, president and chief executive officer of EnerSys, stated, "We are shocked and extremely disappointed with the decision of the arbitration panel. We firmly believe the panel's ruling is not supported by the facts of this case or the Supply and Distribution Agreement with Alteryg. We are currently reviewing our options with our legal counsel in challenging this award, however there can be no assurances that a challenge, if and when made, will ultimately be successful. I also want to assure you that we have sufficient financial resources to pay the full amount of the award and believe we have the ability to continue to return capital to stockholders. Furthermore, we do not believe that the award will impact our ability to realize our existing business plans in the short or long term. We also reaffirm our guidance for the first quarter of fiscal 2015 originally issued on May 7, 2014."

EnerSys intends to fund any amounts to be paid by EDI from immediately available cash on hand and funds available under its existing credit facilities. Based upon this arbitration ruling, EnerSys anticipates recording a one-time charge of between $0.70 and $0.72 per diluted share for the after-tax impact of the award in the fourth quarter of fiscal 2014.
